The four-year BAA in Human Services Management is an applied degree designed to prepare graduates to meet the complex leadership needs of Canada's rapidly changing human services sectors. The program is designed to develop innovative leaders with strong skills in key areas including advocacy and governance, team development, effective leadership of volunteers and efficient management of human, physical, financial, and program resources.

Loyalist plans to offer Year 3 of the program beginning in September 2003, and Years 1, 3 and 4 beginning in September 2004. The information sessions will be of most interest to social science/human services graduates, those who expect to graduate in June 2003, and diploma graduates with some work experience in human services.

Depending on demand, the program will be offered on a part-time or full-time basis.
