The Architectural Technology Program at Loyalist College taught me all the practical skills I needed for the field, plus gave me the freedom to experiment with design. I was able to start my job as a technologist at Colbourne and Kembel Architects Inc. with confidence – right after graduation. I think the program's greatest strength is the amount of attention that you receive from all of the professors. Loyalist gave me the motivation and drive to be the very best that I can be.

The Motive Power Technician program at Loyalist is great. The experience and the diagnostic understanding I gained there made me much more confident in myself and prepared me for the full-time job that I now have at Wells Ford in Stirling.

I am currently employed as an Account Executive for the Mercedes-Benz account at ACLC Advertising – a great mid-sized ad agency in Toronto. I truly love Loyalist's Advertising program because it's not just about creative; it's about integrating all facets of the communication process into final results. That's just one of the reasons why I will always recommend Loyalist to anyone interested in advertising or media.
