

Prepare yourself for the future of journalism

Starting in September 2007, Loyalist College's E-journalism program will be available through distance delivery. You can study at your own pace, at home and within your schedule – take one or two courses or complete the program and graduate with an Ontario College post-graduate diploma.

Loyalist's unique approach to e-journalism challenges students to define new formats for telling stories on-line. You will develop specialized skills in areas such as design, web site creation, and writing for on-line and multimedia. You will develop a portfolio of published work and learn to turn "techno toys" into tools that will enhance your career and earning potential.
